The vein has shown a thickness of from eighteen inches to three and one-half feet, and samples of the high-grade ore which the vein carries and of which quite a tomnage has been sacked for shipment, gave returns of about $300 in silver, $ percent copper, $\mathbf{A}$ gold and 20 per cent lead per ton. In the bottom of the winze the dre aways 176 ounces silver and $ per cent copper, as well as characteristic values in gold and lead.

The ore is almost identical in appearance with the high-grade rock of the Quincy, and the management has mode doubt of the property's future. Work will be continued steadily throughout the season, and by the time winter rolls around again provision will have been made to keep everything moving during the "closed" season.

Camp's Future Will Be Gauged by Lost Packer Development.

Lost Packer Development.

His business on this end of the line for the time being concluded, Ravenel McBeth, the well known idaho mining operator who has been here since Saturday, will leave for Custer tonight. Talking of the Loon Creek district yesterday Mr. McBeth said that nearly everybody seemed to be holding off to see what the development of the Lost Packer would determine. A tunnel has been run to tap the vein at an additional depth of 150 feet and as the latest word from camp is to the effect that the face has entered the phistose formation, Mr. McBeth e-pects to hear that the vein has been tapped by the time he reaches Custer.

If the ore in that tunnel shows the same values that were found in the upper workings, the chances for a big boom in the camp will have been raised 100 per cent. A perfect network of ledges has been discovered in the district and while it is not expected that all of them will prove profitable, the moment it has been elemonstrated that the ore bodies go fown, any amount of capital stands ready to take a hand in the development of the numerous prospects. The values in the Lost Packer have been so uniformly large that the management of the company has left like saying nothing at all-about them for fear of being counted among the visionary. If they hold out down to the new tunnel level, however, the future of the pare been reasonably well established and then the owners will not care who knows it.
